A Community like No Other

Rediscovering the Church

The lead article in a major news magazine (2012) had the title, "Forget the Church—Follow Jesus." This view is popular in our culture. While Jesus remains popular, especially as people reimagine him in their own image, commitment to a community is decreasing. A large portion of the society believes in a privatized Christianity that assumes that one can be a Christian without the church. The church faces (at least) three major challenges today. 1) A popular view that one can have Jesus without the church. 2) The trend away from being a part of any group. 3) Numerous versions of what it means to be church. Paul offers a vision of a community that is like no other.

Dr. James W. Thompson from the Graduate School of Theology, Abilene will come and teach us on this important subject. As in years past, we will also have time for fellowship and recreation in the beautiful surroundings of Hasliberg.
